Summary

Endodontics

Basic Principles
and up-to-date solutions

Summary

Endodontics has been transformed in recent years with the introduction in clinical practice of new devices and diagnostic tools.

The improvement of rotating endodontic files and the new highly biocompatible sealers are two of the new major concepts in the root canal treatment landscape. Moreover, irrigating devices and solutions have been proposed to solve the most critical cases limiting the number of teeth to be extracted for endodontics reasons. All the procedures made the endodontic treatment more feasible and reproducible for all the general practitioners, thus elevating the average quality of their endodontic therapies. A comprehensive approach both to technical and clinical aspects will be proposed to grant all participants safe and solid knowledge of the new endodontic discipline.

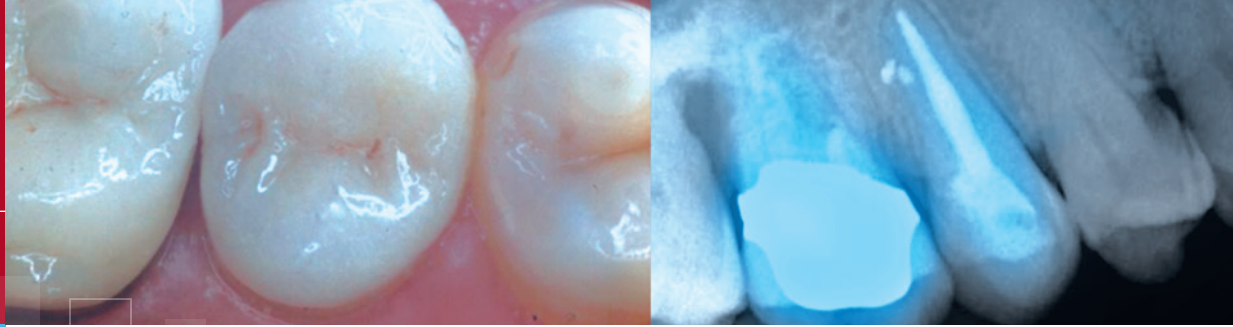

The course is split in modules with a right mix of theoretical and practical information
